

PROTECTING CHARITIES

Non-profit Corporation

Churches almost taken over (raided) by "new-comers" who were prevented at the last moment by having correctly drafted articles and bylaws.

Non-profit

"Indian Giver" who gave possession of equipment to a charity which naturally thought it had received a gift, but sold the equipment when it became too costly to repair and update it. The "Giver" claimed it was a "loan" but the judge didn't buy it and the charity kept its money;
